THE AUTHORS

Vesna Cigan is lecturer in English for Specific Purposes at the University College Effectus, College for Finance and Law, Zagreb, Croatia. Her teaching and research interests relate to the teaching methodology in ESP and Business German, applied linguistics and terminology acquisition.

Ksenia Gałuskina, MA in Law and French Studies, is a junior lecturer at the Institute of Romance Languages and Translation Studies at University of Silesia and a legal translator. Her research interests cover the intersection of language and law, corpus linguistics and lexicography.

Bożena Górska-Poręcka is a teacher of Legal, Business and General English at the Center for Foreign Language Teaching of the University of Warsaw, as well as a doctoral student at the Department of English Studies. Her academic interests focus on the study of the cognitive competences and psychological characteristics of language teachers.

Elżbieta Jendrych is the Head of the Foreign Languages Center at Kozminski University in Warsaw. She works as an ESP teacher and specializes in Business English, English for Economics and English for Finance and Banking. Her research interests include corpus linguistics and studies into ESP terminology.

Emilia Jurgielewicz – M.A. in law, European studies and international affairs. She is Ph.D. student at Department of Criminal Law – Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, Faculty of Law University of Białystok preparing doctoral thesis on legal and criminological aspects of traffic accident with the participation of the disabled – blind and visually impaired persons in particular.

Ljubica Kordić is an Assistant Professor at the University of Osijek, Osijek, Croatia. She holds a MA in the Methodology of Foreign Language
Teaching from the University of Zagreb, Croatia, and a PhD in Linguistics from the University of Zagreb, Croatia. Her main research interests are Foreign Language Teaching (English and German), Legal Linguistics and Sociolinguistics, especially multilingualism and minority languages.

Olga Łachacz is an Assistant Professor of Public International Law at the Faculty of Law and Administration of the University of Warmia and Mazury in Olsztyn. Her research interests have recently focused on territorial asylum and the institutional law of international organizations.

Aleksandra Łuczak is an ESP teacher and the Head of Legilinguistics Section at Kozminski University, Warsaw, Poland. She holds Ph.D. degree from Warsaw University and is the author of a number of articles on teaching English for Specific Purposes and English for Legal Purposes, book reviews, as well as the series of Legal English lessons. Her interests also include the use of the latest technologies in language teaching.

Rafał Manńko is a Research Analyst at the European Parliamentary Research Service of the European Parliament in Brussels. Previously he worked for four years at the Court of Justice of the EU in Luxembourg as a lawyer linguist. He is also preparing a PhD thesis at the Centre for the Study of European Contract Law at the University of Amsterdam.

Miljen Matijašević is a lecturer of English for Legal Purposes at the Faculty of Law, University of Zagreb, Croatia. His areas of interest include English for legal purposes, legal translation and teaching legal translation. He is involved in projects that include activities of legal translation and teaching English for legal purposes and legal translation to legal professionals.

Magdalena Perkowska – holds a PhD degree in law and teaches at the Faculty of Law, University of Białystok, Poland (Department of Criminal Law – Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology). Her areas of interest concern criminal law, criminology (with special emphasis on the foreigners’ criminality, border criminality and Swiss criminal law).

Beata Piecychna – M.A., a doctoral student at the Faculty of Philology of the University of Białystok, a university teacher at the Stanislaw Staszic College of Public Administration in Białystok. In her research work she mainly concentrates on the methodology of translation teaching, translational hermeneutics, and philosophy of language.
Anna Piszczy is an Assistant Professor of Public Economic Law at the University of Białystok and a member of the Centre for Antitrust and Regulatory Studies at the University of Warsaw. She currently teaches courses in competition and public economic law, and she writes widely in the field of economic law.

Dorota Potocka is an Assistant Professor at the Department of English, Faculty of Modern Languages, University of Białystok. She is a specialist in applied linguistics, responsible for the methodology of English language teaching and the organization of teaching practice for students of English philology. Her research interests lie in teacher education.

Halina Sierocka is an Assistant Professor at the Białystok Centre of Legal English, Faculty of Law, University of Białystok. Her research areas lie in legal discourse, English for Specific Purposes (ESP), Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) and team teaching. She is an author of Legal English textbook for law students.

Joanna Sycz, MA in English Studies, is a junior lecturer at the Institute of English, University of Silesia, and a legal translator specializing in business law. Her research interests concern lexicography, forensic linguistics and legal translation.

Elena Vyushkina is an Associate Professor at Saratov State Law Academy, Saratov, Russia. She teaches English for Legal Purposes at undergraduate and graduate levels. Her areas of interest include Legal English, IT in teaching, CLIL, and teaching materials design. She has written a number of articles on teaching Legal English and using IT in the classroom as well as several textbooks used at the Academy.