THE AUTHORS

KATARZYNA BAGAN-KURLUTA is Professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Bialystok, Poland and the head of Department of Private International Law there. She is doctor habilitated, dealing with private international law, family law and human rights issues.

EDITA BARTNIKAITĖ is a lecturer at the Institute of Foreign Languages, Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania, where she teaches Legal and Business English and Business Communication. She has taken part in different international projects on language teaching in higher education. Main fields of her research include the methods of the English language teaching and multilingualism in higher education with the focus on Legal English and Business English.

VILMA BIJEIKIENĖ is Associate Professor at the Institute of Foreign Languages, Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania, where she teaches English for Politics and Diplomacy, Legal English and Sociolinguistics. She is also Executive Editor of the international journal Sustainable Multilingualism. Her research interests include sociolinguistics, discourse analysis, political and forensic linguistics, pragmatics, ESP, EMI and CLIL.

SILVIA CAVALIERI holds a Ph.D in Comparative Languages and Cultures from the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, Department of Linguistic Studies on Language, Text and Translation. She lectured at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, University of Ferrara, University of Parma and University of ilan. She has recently taught CLIL courses organized by the Department of Comparative Studies on Languages and Cultures. Her research interests include: ESP, legal language, courtroom discourse, and academic discourse.
AGNIESZKA DUDZIK is an EMP teacher in the Department of Foreign Languages at the Medical University of Białystok. Currently, she is involved in research into teaching effective patient communication skills to medical students who are looking to work in an English-speaking setting. The research is part of her PhD thesis in the Institute of English Studies, University of Warsaw.

AGNIESZKA DZIECIOŁ-PĘDICH (Ph.D.) works as a teacher of English in the Foreign Languages Teaching Unit at the University of Białystok. Her research interests include: the development of the Communicative Approach and its implementation in different cultures around the world, inter-cultural competence and business English.

KSENIA GAŁUSKINA is an Assistant Professor at the Institute of Romance Languages and Translation Studies at the University of Silesia. She holds an MA degree in Law and a PhD degree in Linguistics. Her research interests include language and law, corpus linguistics, lexicography and legal translation, legal discourse and contrastive discourse analysis, in particular, the study of evaluative language across different professional genres and cultures.

KAROLINA GORTYCH-MICHALAK graduated from Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, Poland, with PhD in Linguistics (2007) and Habilitation in Linguistics (2015). She is an Adiunkt (Assistant Professor) at the Department of the Modern Greek Language and Literature and she has conducted research into as well as taught Modern Greek. Moreover, she has carried out research in the field of Polish-Greek and Greek-Polish comparative legilinguistics and legal translation.

URSZULA GUTOWSKA is a graduate of Law and English Philology, University of Gdańsk, a sworn translator and a Phd student at the Institute of English Studies, University of Warsaw. Since 2010 she has been a lecturer at the State Higher Vocational School of Suwałki, teaching varieties of English for Specific Purposes. She has co-authored articles outside the realm of linguistics. Her linguistic research interests include LSP-CLIL interface and lexicography.

MILENA HADRYAN is a doctor in applied linguistics at the Adam Mickiewicz University. Her publications relate to language policies: ‘The democratization of the official language. Modern tendencies in language planning in Sweden and in Poland’ (2015); ‘About plain language in Swedish official texts as exemplified by how decisions of Försäkringskassan are structured’ (2013).

CSILLA HATI is a PhD student, who in her research, focuses on the significance of the direct perceptibility of personal evidence, and the applicability of verbal and non-verbal means and techniques of influence. She considers it worthwhile to conduct a wide-range examination and analysis of influencing means of communication and interrogation.

ALEKSANDRA ŁUCZAK (M.A., Ph.D.) an ESP teacher and the Head of Legilinguistics Section at Kozminski University in Warsaw, running legal English classes and seminars at the tertiary level. She is also a teacher trainer, an ELT consultant and an author of numerous articles on ESP and ELP teaching. Her interests also include the use of the latest technologies in FLT.

ALEKSANDRA MATULEWSKA is doctor habilitated, a member of the Association of Polish Translators and Interpreters (STP) and Polish Society of Sworn and Specialized Translators TEPIS. She has published 2 monographs, 1 coursebook and over 50 papers on specialised translation. She is the Head of the Department of Legilinguistics (Adam Mickiewicz University) and LSPs, editor-in-chief of Comparative Legilinguistics.

CHIARA PREITE is Associate Professor in French Language and Translation at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, Italy. She holds an MA in Legal Translation from the University of Genoa, Italy, and a PhD in French Linguistics from the University of Brescia, Italy. Her main research interests lie in the fields of legal French, lexicology, lexicography and specialised lexicography, popularisation of legal knowledge and she has published widely on these topics.

LADA V. STUPNIKOVA has a Ph. D. in theory and methods of teaching foreign languages, is an associate professor at the law department of the Russian Foreign Trade Academy of the Ministry for Economic Development of Russia, teaches legal English to students getting bachelor’s and master’s degrees in law and postgraduates, has taken part in the development of several courses on legal English, author of textbooks and scientific articles.

JOANNA SYCZ-OPOŃ is an Assistant Professor at the Institute of English at the University of Silesia. She holds a PhD degree in Linguistics. Her research interests include lexicography, translator training and legal translation.
KRZYSZTOF SZCZYGIELSKI (Ph.D.) is a lecturer at the Faculty of Law, University of Białystok, where he teaches Latin legal terminology. Main fields of his research include: the history of Roman law in Poland, the Canon law of the Catholic Church (with special consideration of concubinage) and applying Latin terminology in the judgments of European and Polish tribunals and courts. He is also interested in European Family law.

PAULA TRZASKAWKA is a PhD student at the Adam Mickiewicz University in the Department of Legilinguistics and Languages for Special Purposes. Her research focuses on the comparative legilinguistics (especially copyrights) and LSP (the language of music). She has been awarded a prestigious scholarship of the Adam Mickiewicz University Foundation for years 2016–2017.

ANGELA ZOTTOLA is a PhD student in Mind, Gender and Language – Curriculum: Language, Linguistics and ESP, at Università di Napoli Federico II. Her research interests are in the field of language and gender, ESP, AVT and media discourse. Among her last publications is “Subtitling the ‘Other’: AVT and Power” in G. Balirano, M. C. Nisco (eds), Language Theory and Society. Liguori: Napoli, 2015.